B-26 Fighter Crashes In So. Viet Nam

Two Americans Killed While Strafing Reds

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam. (AP)—A B26 fighter-bomber carrying two U. S. Air Force pilots and a Vietnamese observer crashed while strafing Communist guerrillas Sunday and witnesses said there were no survivors.

The death toll of American servicemen in South Viet Nam thus rose to 57, of whom 29 have been killed in combat.

The twin-engine plane carried Vietnamese air force markings, part of the effort by authorities here to divert attention from the combat role played by American servicemen in the jungle war.

Armed with machine guns, rockets and bombs, it crashed while shooting up a Viet Cong unit that had attacked a South Vietnamese post 110 miles southwest of Saigon. The post held.

It was not determined whether the plane went down as a result of guerrilla ground fire or mechanical failure.

The report that the Americans and their Vietnamese associate were killed was made by helicopter crewmen who lifted in a company of Vietnamese rangers to secure both the post and the wreckage against further attacks.

The names of the victims were withheld.

All Vietnamese air force B26s normally are piloted by U.S. Air Force men because of the shortage of trained Vietnamese personnel. Americans do the shooting. The air strikes are technically controlled, however, by Vietnamese observers and ground commanders who designate the targets.

This was the second fatal crash of a B26 on a Vietnamese support mission. Two Americans were killed in a similar incident last Nov. 5.

Mona Lisa Moving To New York

WASHINGTON (AP)—The world-famous painting Mona Lisa leaves here tomorrow after a three-week stand at the National Gallery of Art. Its place will be taken, however, by the panels of Hercules, small pictures painted in 15th century Florence by Antonio Pollaiuolo.

The Mona Lisa, painted by Leonardo da Vinci and displayed by permission of the French government, will go on exhibition at New York's Metropolitan Museum Thursday.

It was the Italian government which agreed to show the Hercules Panels at the National Gallery in gratitude for American help in retrieving them.

They were stolen during World War II from the Uffizi Gallery in Florence but turned up mysteriously several months ago in Pasadena, Calif.

Mr. and Mrs. Johann Meindl, a German immigrant couple, said they got the panels from a long-dead friend and had no idea they belonged to the Florence gallery.

Hercules will be unveiled at an informal ceremony tomorrow which Chief Justice Earl Warren, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and Count Miles Ferretti, charge d'affaires of the Italian Embassy, plan to attend.

U. S. Climbers Out To Conquer Mt. Everest

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Fifteen scientists and rugged mountain climbers left Sunday for Nepal, seeking to be the first American expedition ever to climb 29,028-foot Mt. Everest.

"Make no mistake; this is an extremely rugged effort," said group leader Dr. William E. Siri as they boarded a jet transport plane, carrying several delicate instruments they will keep with them.

"Mt. Everest, conquered only twice, is the toughest climb in the world. Our men already have undergone exhaustive physical training and psychological testing and will get more conditioning before the actual assault in May."

Norman G. Dyhrenfurth of Santa Monica, Calif., the expedition leader, preceded them to India in January and will join them at Katmandu, capital of Nepal.

Dr. Siri, scientist from the Donner Radiation Laboratory, University of California, Berkeley, is in charge of the group which flew out to Honolulu on the first stage of the trip.

Dr. Siri said his 15-man group was making the long trip in easy hops to keep in condition and to allow time for purchases of additional equipment and supplies. He was somewhat upset over the idea that has gotten around that this will be a "soft" venture because of the fine food and equipment the expedition is taking.

"There is nothing soft about what we are going to do," Siri said. "But we do try to use whatever late equipment and food supplies we can utilize to lessen the hazards and rigors of the job."

Accompanying Siri were such prominent figures as the writer James Ramsey Ullman, Dr. Gilbert Roberts, 28, Berkeley, Calif., the team physician; James T. Miller, of Michigan State University, the expedition geologist.

16,000 Dockworkers Strike In Nigeria

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP)—More than 20 ships are idle in seven Nigerian ports because of a country-wide strike by 16,000 dockworkers.

The strike, which began Saturday, was called by the National Council of Nigerian Dockworkers to enforce a demand for an increase of 97 cents over their present daily wage of 90 cents.

U. S.-Canadian Rift May Be Fault Of State Department

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chairman George D. Aiken, R-Vt., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said Sunday the present U.S.-Canadian rift "appears to be a case of dissension that is unnecessary as well as unfortunate."

In a statement broadly implying the State Department bungled, Aiken said his group intends to find out why the dispute arose and to "bring about a prompt solution to the controversy to restore the mutual confidence and trust that are essential to both Canada and the United States."

The subcommittee meets in closed session Monday to study the controversy about whether Canada should employ nuclear weapons, as the United States government wishes, or stick to conventional weapons as it has been doing.

Aiken said in a statement prepared for the opening of the hearing, "We wish to have explained the reasons which led the State Department to express its dissatisfaction with Canadian views on continental defense by a public statement rather than through normal diplomatic channels."

This Jan. 30 news release caused a furor in Canada and led its Prime Minister, John G. Diefenbaker, to charge the United States with unwarranted interference in Canada's internal affairs.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk subsequently expressed regret if the wording of the announcement offended Canadians but he did not withdraw the basic claim that the Canadian government has been foot-dragging in coming up with a plan for continental defense built around nuclear weapons.

The State Department later said the public statement was necessary because the U.S. position had been distorted in Canadian parliamentary debate at Ottawa and needed to be set straight.

Transportation Is Near Normal In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Buses, trolleys and subway—elevated trains were rolling normally again Sunday in America's fourth-largest city after a 19-day transit strike that crippled business and inconvenienced half a million daily riders.

The 5,600 members of Local 234, Transport Workers Union, AFL-CIO, returned to their Philadelphia Transportation Co. jobs, starting Saturday night, after secretly approving a new two-year contract by a 3-1 margin.

Michael J. Quill, TWU's international president, hailed the 33-cent-an-hour package settlement, asserted it moved Philadelphia from 35th to 9th place in the nation's transit wage scales.

Then he promised to be back here in two years.

Moneywise, the strikers received 20 cents an hour—10 cents each year. This increases the basic operating wage to $2.75. The other 13 cents is for hospitalization, pensions, insurance.

Weary labor and management negotiators actually reached settlement Friday night in the offices of Gov. William W. Scranton in the state Capitol at Harrisburg. But union approval didn't come until late Saturday.

Reds Reported Out To Wreck Malaysia Pact

SINGAPORE (AP)—The Internal Security Council charged Sunday that left wingers of this predominantly Chinese island state are allied with foreign Communists in efforts to wreck the projected Federation of Malaysia.

The council made the charge in a nine-page statement, called "The Communist Conspiracy," in connection with the arrest of at least 107 leftist leaders by security agents here Saturday.

The Federation of Malaysia, due to come into being by Aug. 31, 1963, is intended to unite Singapore, Malaya and three British Borneo territories torn by a brief revolt last December—Brunei, Sarawak and North Borneo. It is to become a new free nation.

The Singapore council, composed of three Britons, three Singapore officials and one Malayan, aimed most of its fire at the Barisan Sosialis—Socialist Front, the biggest opposition to Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew's Socialist government.

Part Of Lost Art Collection Is Recovered

WASHINGTON (AP)—Art Dealer Rudy Agra got some of his missing paintings back Sunday—thanks to sharp-eyed truck drivers—but he said more than $4,000 worth of art work, including a Picasso drawing, is still missing.

The paintings were lost Tuesday by Agra who was taking them back to Washington after displaying them at Easton, Md. Agra said the art work was in two suitcases which he strapped to the top of his car. They were apparently blown off by the wind.

Agra estimated the value of the paintings at $5,000 but said the eight retrieved Sunday are worth about $700.

Aubrey P. Matthews, of Denton, Md., and Raymond Mace of Greensboro, Md., found the eight paintings in a field near Queens-town, Md., on U.S. 50 while they were returning to Denton after delivering milk to Washington.

Four Killed In Crash Of Cargo Plane

Tried To Land At San Francisco In Heavy Fog

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Four Slick Airways employees were trapped and burned to death in a Slick Super Constellation cargo plane which caught fire after a crash landing at foggy San Francisco International Airport on Sunday.

Three Slick flight engineers and a representative of General Electric Corp. escaped with noncritical fractures and cuts, but no burns. They were at Peninsula Hospital in Burlingame, near the airport. The hospital reported all doing well.

A spokesman for Slick said the survivors were unable to give details of the crash or of their escape.

Slick Airways said the plane, inbound nonstop from Albuquerque, N.M., carried a crew of three and a number of other company employees were aboard.

The airport had been obscured by dense fog earlier in the day and was still very hazy when the plane was given clearance to land. Observers said it appeared to have missed the runway by 100 yards. The left wing dragged the ground and the large craft caught fire as it smashed up.

Passengers on other planes arriving at the busy airport could see the still burning and smoldering wreckage as they landed.

The crash occurred about a mile from the airport terminal. The four-engine propeller-driven plane was a complete loss. Two engine pods were broken off; the aluminum skin burned and stripped from large areas of the fuselage.

Shah Of Iran Signs Promised Reform Pledges

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—The shah formally signed into law Sunday six reform laws which received overwhelming popular approval in a referendum last week.

The laws, intended to spark a social revolution in this country, are:

1. A land reform program which already has distributed more than 200,000 acres of farmland among 52,112 families.

2. Sale of government-owned factories to finance the land reform program.

3. An election law aimed at preventing rigged elections.

4. Nationalization of forests.

5. Formation of a teachers' corps, 50,000 strong, to bring education to the nation's rural areas, still 80 per cent illiterate.

6. A plan to give workers 20 per cent of the net profits of factories. State-owned industries, including the National Iranian Oil Co., are exempted but workers have been promised bonuses equal to the largest shares given under the plan.

The communiqué alluded to De Gaulle's opposition to President Kennedy's proposals for a multilateral nuclear NATO force, and voiced support for the President's plan.

"As the strength, security and cohesion of the free world depend now more than ever on the North Atlantic Alliance," it said, "the two prime ministers affirmed their determination to maintain the existing collaboration with the United States of America and welcomed the opportunity to establish a NATO multilateral nuclear force in order to enable the alliance to maintain peace in security."

Without disclosing precise strategy, a joint communiqué summed up their views: "The two prime ministers were as one in deploring the breakdown of these (Brussels) negotiations and in resolving that this setback must not do lasting damage to the cause of European unity," it said.

"Meanwhile, they will extend and strengthen the close consultation which already exists in the political and economic fields, both on a bilateral basis and with other states which share the common aim of European unity."

Senator Predicts Social Security Revolt By 1970

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., predicted Sunday a revolt in about 1970 among recipients on federal old age Social Security benefits, claiming they will find they could get a better private plan for the same money.

In a television interview he said that is why he is going to propose making participation in the program both voluntary and more flexible.

He didn't say when he might seek such changes.

The Arizona senator charged that federal welfare programs had created a welfare class.

Italy Pledges Full Support To British

Endorse Kennedy Stand On Nuclear Force For NATO

By GERALD MILLER

ROME (AP)—Italy's government pledged Prime Minister Harold Macmillan full support Sunday for Britain's campaign to join the European Common Market and resist French efforts to weaken American influence in European affairs.

Macmillan ended a three-day visit with commitments from Premier Amintore Fanfani to work with him and other European leaders to nullify the French "no" which barred Britain from the booming continental economic community.

"I have been very much encouraged by the unanimity of the Italian and British points of view," Macmillan told newsmen, then added: "A setback is not the end of the journey."

Macmillan Encouraged

The talks were Macmillan's first with a Common Market nation premier since the setback at Brussels last Tuesday and he went home in an atmosphere of psychological triumph.

From the moment of his arrival Friday in Rome, birthplace of the 5-year-old Common Market, it was clear Italian leaders were anxious to help save the Western Alliance from weakening under French President Charles de Gaulle's "Yankee-go-home" attitude.

In three rounds of discussions that totaled eight hours, Macmillan and Fanfani pondered how to salvage a united Europe out of an openly divided economic alliance and a North Atlantic Treaty Organization shaken by De Gaulle's stand.

Troops Kill One, Wound Four Others

Former Candidate Fernando Aguero Under House Arrest

By MARTIN McREYNOLDS

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI)—Federal troops shot and killed one anti-government demonstrator and wounded four others in clashes with mobs demonstrating during Sunday's national presidential elections.

Former presidential candidate Fernando Aguero was placed under house arrest for allegedly sparking the disorders.

Attendees at General Hospital told United Press International that one of the four shot demonstrators was in critical condition and not expected to live. They said another victim already had died.

The victims, who were followers of Aguero, were shot in front of San Antonio Church.

Police wielded billyclubs, hurled tear gas grenades and fired their rifles into the air to disperse one crowd of young Aguero followers who refused to disband after being sprayed with blue-dyed water from a government water truck. "We want Aguero!" the demonstrators chanted.

When police threw tear gas grenades and fired tear gas pellets among them, they countered by bouncing rocks off the helmets of the riot squads, finally retreating when police fired into the air.

Aguero had taken refuge in a house across from San Antonio Church when police charged his crowd of followers.

Aguero Urges Boycott

He left voluntarily for his own home and house arrest after a conference with Col. Edmundo Rocha, federal district commander of the national guard.

In the first election day clash, Aguero's followers turned over and burned a car in Republic Plaza.

Aguero pulled out of the presidential race for alleged lack of guarantees of a free election and urged his followers to boycott the election.

Rene Schick, the official party candidate of President Luis Somoza's Liberal party, was considered a certain run-away victor.

He faced token opposition in Diego Manuel Chamorro of the Nicaraguan Conservative party—no relation to Aguero's Conservative party.

Cuba Facing Rice Shortage

HAVANA (AP)—Cuba's agricultural boss has criticized government rice farms for allowing the year's crop to drop below expectations. No figures were announced.

The current ration for this staple is six pounds per month.

The newspaper El Mundo disclosed Sunday that the farm managers were chided by Carlos Rafael Rodriguez, head of the National Institute of Agrarian Reform.

Cuba has always had to import large quantities of rice to meet the demand of the people, rich and poor. Its paddies in the past have been able to supply about half the demand. During the first year of Prime Minister Fidel Castro's government about 400 million pounds were imported. Most came from the United States.

Viet Cong Guerrillas Use Cameras In Recruit Drive

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Communist guerrillas in South Viet Nam are seeking to add a touch of recruiting-poster glamor to their grim campaign against the Saigon government.

To inspire confidence in the Viet Cong cause, actual battle photographs are being distributed to guerrillas, showing successful engagement with the South Vietnamese or American enemy. The Viet Cong has captured many cameras and Communist photographers are often on the scene after a successful ambush on a road convoy or attack on an outpost.

Photos generally show peasants happily working for the Viet Cong, building gun emplacements or pit traps. Other pictures show actual fire fights and enemy bodies or captured weapons. In every set of pictures, a Viet Cong guerrilla is shown in some heroic pose, sometimes with sword, bugle and flag.

The Viet Cong is desperately short of medical supplies and aid men, and morale is believed to have suffered as a result. Many propaganda photographs show Viet Cong aid stations, seemingly well-equipped, with a smiling patient having a bullet extracted by a field surgeon.

Photographs recently seized by government forces from the Viet Cong still seem to be the work of amateurs, but technical quality is improving.

The crash occurred about a mile from the airport terminal. The four-engine propeller-driven plane was a complete loss. Two engine pods were broken off, the aluminum skin burned and stripped from large areas of the fuselage.

Shah Of Iran Signs Promised Reform Pledges

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—The shah formally signed into law Sunday six reform laws which received overwhelming popular approval in a referendum last week.

The laws, intended to spark a social revolution in this country, are:

1. A land reform program which already has distributed more than 200,000 acres of farmland among 52,112 families.
2. Sale of government-owned factories to finance the land reform program.
3. An election law aimed at preventing rigged elections.
4. Nationalization of forests.
5. Formation of a teachers' corps, 50,000 strong, to bring education to the nation's rural areas, still 80 per cent illiterate.
6. A plan to give workers 20 per cent of the net profits of factories. State-owned industries, including the National Iranian Oil Co., are exempted but workers have been promised bonuses equal to the largest shares given under the plan.

Two New Zealand Policemen Shot

LOWER HUTT, New Zealand (AP)—Two policemen sent to investigate a domestic squabble here were shot dead Sunday night.

Leslie Schultz, 22, and James Thomas Richardson, 25, were still in their patrol car when rifle shots fired from a bedroom window 30 feet away cut them down.

Bruce McPhee, 28, a toolmaker, was arrested and charged with murder. It was the second such double murder of policemen in New Zealand. The first took place at Waitakere just four weeks ago.

Landslide Hits Where 106 Died In Roof Collapse

By JORGE JURADO

QUITO, Ecuador (AP)—A landslide struck Sunday at Bibiani, a farming community in the Andes, resulting in the death of 106 pupils and four teachers in the collapse of a Roman Catholic parochial school.

Seven homes were destroyed by the landslide, loosed by heavy rains that contributed to the disaster at the Heart of Mary College on Friday.

But the moving tons of earth wrought no new casualties. In spite of further rains, funeral services were held for 62 victims of the school's collapse. Parents carried in the white-clad bodies of

Senator Predicts Social Security Revolt By 1970

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., predicted Sunday a revolt in about 1970 among recipients on federal old age Social Security benefits, claiming they will find they could get a better private plan for the same money.

In a television interview he said that is why he is going to propose making participation in the program both voluntary and more flexible.

He didn't say when he might seek such changes.

The Arizona senator charged that federal welfare programs had created a welfare class.

Italy Pledges Full Support To British

Endorse Kennedy Stand On Nuclear Force For NATO

By GERALD MILLER

ROME (AP)—Italy's government pledged Prime Minister Harold Macmillan full support Sunday for Britain's campaign to join the European Common Market and resist French efforts to weaken American influence in European affairs.

Macmillan ended a three-day visit with commitments from Premier Amintore Fanfani to work with him and other European leaders to nullify the French "no" which barred Britain from the booming continental economic community.

"I have been very much encouraged by the unanimity of the Italian and British points of view," Macmillan told newsmen, then added: "A setback is not the end of the journey."

Macmillan Encouraged

The talks were Macmillan's first with a Common Market nation premier since the setback at Brussels last Tuesday and he went home in an atmosphere of psychological triumph.

From the moment of his arrival Friday in Rome, birthplace of the 5-year-old Common Market, it was clear Italian leaders were anxious to help save the Western Alliance from weakening under French President Charles de Gaulle's "Yankee-go-home" attitude.

In three rounds of discussions that totaled eight hours, Macmillan and Fanfani pondered how to salvage a united Europe out of an openly divided economic alliance and a North Atlantic Treaty Organization shaken by De Gaulle's stand.

Work For Unity

Without disclosing precise strategy, a joint communique summed up their views: "The two prime ministers were as one in deploring the breakdown of these (Brussels) negotiations and in resolving that this setback must not do lasting damage to the cause of European unity," it said.

"Meanwhile, they will extend and strengthen the close consultation which already exists in the political and economic fields, both on a bilateral basis and with other states which share the common aim of European unity."

The communique alluded to De Gaulle's opposition to President Kennedy's proposals for a multilateral nuclear NATO force, and voiced support for the President's plan.

"As the strength, security and cohesion of the free world depend now more than ever on the North Atlantic Alliance," it said, "the two prime ministers affirmed their determination to maintain the existing collaboration with the United States of America and welcomed the opportunity to establish a NATO multilateral nuclear force in order to enable the alliance to maintain peace in security."

Troops Kill One, Wound Four Others

Former Candidate Fernando Aguero Under House Arrest

By MARTIN McREYNOLDS

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI)—Federal troops shot and killed one anti-government demonstrator and wounded four others in clashes with mobs demonstrating during Sunday's national presidential elections.

Former presidential candidate Fernando Aguero was placed under house arrest for allegedly sparking the disorders.

Attendants at General Hospital told United Press International that one of the four shot demonstrators was in critical condition and not expected to live. They said another victim already had died.

The victims, who were followers of Aguero, were shot in front of San Antonio Church.

Police wielded billyclubs, hurled tear gas grenades and fired their rifles into the air to disperse one crowd of young Aguero followers who refused to disband after being sprayed with blue-dyed water from a government water truck.

"We want Aguero!" the demonstrators chanted.

When police threw tear gas grenades and fired tear gas pellets among them, they countered by bouncing rocks off the helmets of the riot squads, finally retreating when police fired into the air.

Aguero had taken refuge in a house across from San Antonio Church when police charged his crowd of followers.

Aguero Urges Boycott

He left voluntarily for his own home and house arrest after a conference with Col. Edmundo Rocha, federal district commander of the national guard.

In the first election day clash, Aguero's followers turned over and burned a car in Republic Plaza.

Aguero pulled out of the presidential race for alleged lack of guarantees of a free election and urged his followers to boycott the election.

Rene Schick, the official party candidate of President Luis Somoza's Liberal party, was considered a certain run-away victor.

He faced token opposition in Diego Manuel Chamorro of the Nicaraguan Conservative party—no relation to Aguero's Conservative party.

Cuba Facing Rice Shortage

HAVANA (AP)—Cuba's agricultural boss has criticized government rice farms for allowing the year's crop to drop below expectations. No figures were announced.

The current ration for this staple is six pounds per month.

The newspaper El Mundo disclosed Sunday that the farm managers were chided by Carlos Rafael Rodriguez, head of the National Institute of Agrarian Reform.

Cuba has always had to import large quantities of rice to meet the demand of the people, rich and poor. Its paddies in the past have been able to supply about half the demand. During the first year of Prime Minister Fidel Castro's government about 400 million pounds were imported. Most came from the United States.

Md. Highway Fatalities Hit 36 This Year

Maryland's 1963 traffic fatality count rose to 36 Sunday with the death of a 19-year-old Baltimore youth. Four other persons died on Maryland highways Saturday.

Raymond Wesley Brenham was killed early Sunday morning when the sports car he was driving skidded on a wet pavement, struck a bridge abutment, crashed through a guard rail and then hit a steel light pole.

State Police said the accident happened on the Baltimore Harbor Tunnel Road just north of Maryland 3 in Anne Arundel County as police were chasing Brannham who was driving a stolen car.

Two persons died Saturday in the head-on collision of a car and Greyhound bus on the Baltimore Washington Parkway.

Ada Cole, 29, and Carl Davis, 30, both of Neptune, N.J., were killed when their car struck the bus. Police said the car was traveling north in the southbound lane.

William P. Fleck, 63, of Glen Burnie, Md., was killed when he was struck by a car on a rainy Baltimore street.

In the other fatal accident Saturday, Larry R. Hockenbrought, 17, of near Waterloo, was killed when his car skidded on U.S. 29 near Ellicott City and struck a guard rail.

Europeans Hit Again By Storm

By LEONARD KIRSCHEN

LONDON (AP)—Fresh heavy snows, propelled at times by gale-force winds, lashed southern Europe from Spain to Yugoslavia on Sunday, blanketing usually balmy Mediterranean shores with a new cover of white.

Deep drifts built up in mountain passes in Portugal, Italy and Yugoslavia, isolating more remote villages and further disrupting rail and road traffic already snarled by one of Europe's worst winters.

Icy cold gripped the Continent and Britain from Scandinavia to the Italian boot. Hungry, howling wolf packs swooped down from the frozen Apennines of central Italy, to raid barnyards and prey on cattle and sheep.

Five more deaths were reported in Italy and two more in Spain, raising Europe's winter weather toll to 529.

Half a world away, fresh snowfalls heaped more misery on blizzard-battered Japan, where the toll from three weeks of record snows stood at 86 persons known dead, 9 missing and 113 injured. More than 1,200 Japanese homes have been destroyed or damaged, mostly by avalanches, and rail traffic was paralyzed, requiring air drops of food to many isolated communities.

Europe's workday routine also was in chaos, but for the sportsman, the entire Continent was a winter festival. Skaters took to the frozen canals of Holland and Germany, and skiers towed by autos glided along the snow-covered beaches of the usually sun-scorched Adriatic bathing resort of Cosenza, Italy. Other skiers made the most of a rare occasion and tried the slopes of Mt. Vesuvius, covered top to bottom with snow for the first time in years.

In northern England, bulldozers tried vainly to free highways, trains ran hours late and road traffic crawled painfully on ice. The rest of Britain was under a blanket of snow and freezing winds swept in from the North Sea.

Heavy snowfalls blanketed Vienna and eastern parts of Austria and heavy winds piled up drifts to bring new threats of avalanches on roads and rail tracks up in the mountains. The temperature hovered at zero.

The Danube was frozen solid at Austria's eastern frontier. Upstream two ice jams, 15 and 30 miles long, clogged the river.

Western Yugoslavia was hit by a new cold wave and parts of the northern Adriatic resort district were covered by snow a foot deep.

Economists Explain Spending Power Of Proposed Tax Cut

By EDMOND LE BRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — What do you know about the multiplier and the accelerator?

Don't think you can find out by looking in the office machinery or in your automobile. But you'll likely be hearing more about the multiplier and the accelerator as the debate warms up over President Kennedy's tax-revision proposals and how much, if at all, they would speed up the economy $8 billion worth? $16 billion? $33 billion?

Mathematical Concepts

These are mathematical concepts economists use in trying to figure out how much economic stimulation there is in a given amount of tax relief—that is, of money left in people's hands instead of collected for the Treasury. The concepts are not in themselves particularly complicated, but putting them to practical use involves dealing with a maze of interrelated figures.

One economist, illustrating the multiplier, sprayed a whole page with formulae heavy on the Greek letters. But really working out a multiplier effect for a given situation, he said, takes about 10 to 15 machine computations, reducing some 35 unknowns to nine algebraic symbols for which actual values must then be dug out of the available economic statistics.

Outlines Theory

Kennedy's own top economic adviser, Walter W. Heller, explained the theory of the multiplier to the Joint Senate-House Economic Committee in terms like these: Say you have a tax cut of $8.5 billion. About one-half billion will be saved, about $8 billion spent. So production of consumer goods and services will be stepped up $8 billion and the gross national product of the country goes up by that amount.

Just A Beginning

But this is only the beginning, if the theory is sound.

Looked at another way, that $8 billion is gross receipts of the businesses that make and sell the goods. Some of the receipts go into taxes, some into profits which in turn are divided between dividends and corporate saving, some into wages. About 54 cents of every dollar gets back into some consumer's hand and he spends about 50 cents of it.

So, says Heller, there's another $4 billion starting another round, which leads to another round of $2 billion, which leads to another of $1 billion, and so on. It all adds up eventually to $16 billion, which Heller called the "pure consumption multiplier" effect, doubling the original amount.

But this still isn't all. Remember the accelerator.

Increased Consumption

The theory of the accelerator is that increased consumption generates increased investment to produce the goods. Economists are chary of exact figures here, but some believe that, say a 5 per cent increase in consumption produces much more than a 5 per cent increase in investment.

Heller said, "Ultimately, each added billion dollars of investment will bring along with it an addition of another billion of consumer demand."

He didn't estimate the total multiplied and remultiplied effect of the tax cut, except that it would be far more than the $16 billion.

But Roy E. Moor, economist for the committee, made his own calculations and came up with a possible $33 billion.

Castro Forces Vocal

Voting started quietly, with long lines forming at federal district polling places. The index fingers of those voting were held red to prevent re-voting. Some 547,000 registered voters of the nation's 1.6 million inhabitants are eligible to vote. The government predicted a 70 per cent turnout.

Nicaraguan pro-Castro exiles broadcasting on radio Havana had been urging Nicaraguans to rebel against "the electoral force of the Somoza dynasty."

Unofficial results were expected Monday night, but official results were not scheduled until three weeks from Sunday.

Some twenty U. S. newsmen were here to cover the elections. A three-man unofficial observer team was here from the Organization of American States (OAS) at the invitation of the Nicaraguan government.

The U. S. observer, Donald Irwin, of Norwalk, Conn., said, "we are all here strictly as individuals and we are eager to learn what the local situation is."

President Somoza told a news conference Saturday night "if the United States doesn't realize what a danger Fidel Castro is to Latin America, the United States itself will perish." He told foreign newsmen the Nicaraguan army is ready to join an OAS army to destroy the Castro regime.

Veteran Policeman Is Shot To Death

RUGBY, N.D. (UPI)—A veteran police officer died in a hail of bullets Sunday while fighting it out with three young burglars he surprised in an alley behind a tavern.

The bullet-riddled body of Frank Peterson, 56, was found by an elderly man who witnessed the slaying. Police said 16 bullets were found in Peterson's body.

Officers found slugs from at least 40 bullets, indicating a savage battle had taken place.

Maryland Briefs

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The comp-roller's office has reported that net receipts from alcoholic beverages totaled $980,033 during January, an increase of 5.4 per cent for a similar period last year. Revenues from distilled spirits totaled $775,633, beer $141,371 and wine $65,007.

CENTREVILLE, Md. (AP)—Police are holding two teen-aged boys after a high speed chase in which the youths drove a car belonging to a member of the Connecticut House of Representatives.

The car belongs to F. Timothy McNamara of East Hartford, Conn. Police noticed the boys Saturday as they were going through Centreville and chased them until the car ran off U.S. 213 on a sharp curve. The boys, aged 15 and 17, were not injured. They told police they had planned to drive to Florida.

WESTMINSTER, Md. (AP)—Gail Saltzman, a 17-year-old blue-eyed, blonde senior at Millford Mill High School, was selected as Maryland's Junior Miss for 1963 Saturday night.

Representing the Randallstown Junior Chamber of Commerce, Miss Saltzman will represent the Maryland Jaycees in March at Mobile, Ala., when the National Junior Miss Pageant is held.

Runner-up to Miss Saltzman was Sally Dell, 17, representing the Timonium-Cockeysville Jaycees. Thirteen girls competed in the fourth annual contest.

Education Cost Shows State Is In 12th Place

WASHINGTON (AP) The National Education Association says the District of Columbia will spend about $456 to educate each pupil in its public schools this year. This is $24 more than the national average of $432. The association said only 17 states, including Maryland, will spend more per pupil this year than the nation's capital.

Maryland ranked 12th in the association's survey at an estimated per pupil spending of $469 this year. The association estimated spending in Virginia at $335 per pupil. Only 10 states, the association's survey said, will spend less than that per pupil this year.

Just A Beginning

But this is only the beginning, if the theory is sound.

Looked at another way, that $8 billion is gross receipts of the businesses that make and sell the goods. Some of the receipts go into taxes, some into profits which in turn are divided between dividends and corporate saving, some into wages. About 54 cents of every dollar gets back into some consumer's hand and he spends about 50 cents of it.

So, says Heller, there's another $4 billion starting another round, which leads to another round of $2 billion, which leads to another of $1 billion, and so on. It all adds up eventually to $16 billion, which Heller called the "pure consumption multiplier" effect, doubling the original amount.

But this still isn't all. Remember the accelerator.

Increased Consumption

The theory of the accelerator is that increased consumption generates increased investment to produce the goods. Economists are chary of exact figures here, but some believe that, say a 5 per cent increase in consumption produces more than a 5 per cent increase in investment.

Heller said, "Ultimately, each added billion dollars of investment will bring along with it an addition of another billion of consumer demand."

He didn't estimate the total multiplied and remultiplied effect of the tax cut, except that it would be far more than the $16 billion.

But Roy E. Moor, economist for the committee, made his own calculations and came up with a possible $33 billion.

Education Cost Shows State Is In 12th Place

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Education Association says the District of Columbia will spend about $456 to educate each pupil in its public schools this year.

This is $24 more than the national average of $432. The association said only 17 states, including Maryland, will spend more per pupil this year than the nation's capital.

Maryland ranked 12th in the association's survey at an estimated per pupil spending of $469 this year. The association estimated spending in Virginia at $335 per pupil. Only 10 states, the association's survey said, will spend less than that per pupil this year.

Ann Landers . . . Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We are two girls 12 years old who want to know how to get rid of an ex-friend.

She used to be a very nice young lady, but ever since her mother bought her a coat with a raccoon collar she is like a different person. This girl actually went to the principal of the school and asked him if she could have a locker all to herself because she didn't want her raccoon collar to get crushed by somebody else's coat.

We are all sick of her strutting around like a peacock and we want to let her know. How can we do it? Thank you for your advice.

—AGAINST SHOW-OFFS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In a few weeks the coat won't be so new and she won't strut so much. Be patient and wait until the girl returns to normal.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've been married to an almost perfect husband for 13 years. He never loses his temper, his disposition is remarkable. He is successful in business, generous with money, good to our children, and we've never had a serious fight.

We get along beautifully so long as he keeps his hands off me, but THIS he does not want to do. I've been trying for years to tell him I don't love him and never did. I married him thinking his good qualities and generosity would make up for the missing ingredient, but I was wrong.

His kisses leave me cold. His love making is clumsy and inept. I get nothing from him. I thought he'd improve in time, but if anything he has gotten worse. Shall I divorce him? Provided I can find some grounds? Or should I stick with him for the children? You may think I'm unbalanced to complain when I have all the material things, but believe me I'd rather scrub floors and have something of the other.

Can you advise me?

—NO PULSE

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You married this man for his good qualities — one of them being his ability to provide you with material things. Apparently he has delivered.

You don't say why HE married YOU — but he didn't marry you to "keep his hands off."

The unsatisfactory sexual aspect of your marriage is a reflection of your dissatisfaction with the whole man. You two need outside help. Divorce is not the answer. Cure it? Don't kill it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am in my room all alone, like I had the measles or something. I have been sentenced to the life of a hermit for six weeks. The reason is because I got a bad grade on my report card.

A 13-year-old girl can dry up and die if she has no social life. I have tried to make my parents see that no good will be gained by jailing me for six weeks. How can this make my grades better? It can't take away the bad grade I already have.

There is a big party Saturday night and I am not allowed to go. What do they think they are gaining by being so mean? Please help to spring me—PRISONER.

DEAR PRISONER: Your plea for a new trial is denied, but you do have a point.

A jail sentence should involve more than punishment. You're supposed to be studying up there. Toots. So hop to it. While you serve your sentence you can also crack a few books and improve your grades.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:
♠ A 10 ♣ K Q 5 ♦ Q J 7 4 ♠ J 8 6 3

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—One no trump. The you have adequate support for partner's major suit, a raise is not recommended because your hand is an absolute minimum and of a balanced nature. Unless partner is able to take another step, you may be confident that there is no game in the hand.

Q. 2—As South you hold:
♠ A K 9 8 6 2 ♣ K 5 ♦ J 3 ♠ K 10 5

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣ Pass 2 ♠ Pass 2 NT Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Four spades. You have previously been compelled to sign off with a hand that is somewhat above minimum. Nevertheless, partner has shown a hand of distinct value when he proceeded to two no trump. The partnership should, therefore, have sufficient assets to warrant a game try and, with this somewhat unbalanced hand, we suggest a jump to game in spades. In view of partner's two no trump bid, it is reasonable for you to assume that he has two spades.

Q. 3—As South you hold:
♠ 6 4 3 ♦ K Q 10 9 7 6 4 2 ♠ 5 4

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 NT Pass ?

What do you bid?
A.—Three no trump. The eight card diamond suit will produce seven tricks for partner for, if he lacks the ace, he must have three small diamonds inasmuch as no trump openings are not sanctioned with a worthless doubton. Remember that hands containing eight card suits do not come within the provisions of the ordinary laws.

Q. 4—E a s t West vulnerable. As South you hold:
♠ A K 5 4 ♦ 9 ♣ K Q J 6 ♠ Q 10 6 3

The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♠ Pass Pass 1 ♥ Double ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Redouble. The fact that you have but a singleton heart should not deter you from making this move. You have sufficient in high card values to render partner's contract safe. The important consideration is to have yourself elected temporary captain of this team.

Q. 5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠ A K Q 9 8 ♦ K 10 9 4 ♠ K 8 6 2

The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♥ Double Pass 2 ♣ Double Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—While partner's double is clearly intended for penalties, there is grave doubt as to the propriety of leaving it in. Inasmuch as the opponents have agreed on hearts, it is not to be expected that a stinging penalty will be inflicted upon the nonvulnerable enemy. There seems to be a better chance to score points by reaching for game, and our suggested call is four clubs.

Q. 6—Both vulnerable. As South you hold:
♠ A K 10 6 2 ♦ K Q 10 8 ♦ J 9 ♠ K Q 10

The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♥ Pass Pass Double Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Our preference is for a pass. Your hand should surely produce five to six tricks in defense and, if partner has a good enough hand to yield a game, you should be able to defeat the adversaries 800 points. If your partner's double is light, you may have no game and yet a profit by way of a penalty is assured.

Q. 7—As South you hold:
♠ A 6 2 ♦ J 2 ♦ J 9 8 3 ♠ A 7 6 3

The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ 2 ♦ 3 ♦ ?

What do you bid?
A.—Your holding of two aces, opposite a partner who has made a game demand bid, should persuade you that there is a slam in the hand, but there is no need to rush matters and a mere bid of four clubs is in order. If partner raises to five, you may either bid six clubs or show the ace of spades.

Q. 8—As South you hold:
♠ Q 6 5 ♦ K 9 4 3 ♦ J 10 9 8 2 ♠ 5

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♣ Pass 1 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Pass. A new suit does not force responder. With only six high card points you have done your full duty when you kept the bidding open and it would be improper to bid one no trump just to show the heart stopper.

Secrets Of Charm by John Robert Powers

Backward Glance, Stockings "Seam" Prettier

Full-fashioned hose, seamed to allow for fit and flexibility, may be down in popularity — but they're not out! Not for the girls and women who take the trouble to take a look at themselves going as well as coming.

The view from the rear upholds the age-old viewpoint that stockings with seams do a better job of streamlining legs.

So, only the woman with tooth-pick thin stems can be excused for her reluctance to switch from the seamless hose not requiring tiresome straightening.

Those with full-curved to heavy limbs might profit from a backward glance—in both beauty and budget departments. Full-fashioned stockings not only improve leg-lines but provide the stretch that allows for longer wear with greater activity.

It's quite possible that feminine reluctance to "straighten seams" may not be due to sheer-hose laziness, as so many stocking promoters claim. The fact remains that manufacturers have concentrated most of their fashion emphasis on the easier-to-wear seamless styles, especially in color and in heel-and-toe design.

They've captured the bare-legged look women want for daytime wear and in sandal-styled shoes—without repeating the same efforts in seamed stockings.

It's conceivable that full-fashioned hose would be more readily accepted—and not only by the women who need them most—few seamlines, heels and toes were less pronounced and lighter in color and if the color variety in seamed hose were greater in general.

Some stocking manufacturers, of course, have kept pace with both seamed and seamless strides in fashion. Becoming acquainted with them is a simple matter for a woman who insists on an introduction next time she shops at her favorite stocking-bar.

All legs can be prettier with proper exercise. Prove it to yourself by practicing, for at least six weeks, the advice in my pamphlet called "Dance Through a Week to Beauty"—available on request to me, John Robert Powers, c/o this newspaper, when you enclose 10c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

A.—Your holding of two aces, opposite a partner who has made a game demand bid, should persuade you that there is a slam in the hand, but there is no need to rush matters and a mere bid of four clubs is in order. If partner raises to five, you may either bid six clubs or show the ace of spades.

Q. 6—Both vulnerable. As South you hold:
A ♠ K 10 6 2 ♣ K Q 10 8 ♦ J 9 ♠ K Q 10
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♠ Pass Pass Double Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Our preference is for a pass. Your hand should surely produce five to six tricks in defense and, if partner has a good enough hand to yield a game, you should be able to defeat the adversaries 800 points. If your partner's double is light, you may have no game and yet a profit by way of a penalty is assured.

Q. 7—As South you hold:
A ♠ 6 2 ♣ J 2 ♦ J 9 8 3 ♠ A 7 6 3
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ 2 ♠ 3 ♠ ?

What do you bid?
A.—Your holding of two aces, opposite a partner who has made a game demand bid, should persuade you that there is a slam in the hand, but there is no need to rush matters and a mere bid of four clubs is in order. If partner raises to five, you may either bid six clubs or show the ace of spades.

Q. 8—As South you hold:
A ♠ 6 5 ♦ K 9 4 3 ♦ J 10 9 8 2 ♠ 5
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Pass. A new suit does not force responder. With only six high card points you have done your full duty when you kept the bidding open and it would be improper to bid one no trump just to show the heart stopper.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Backward Glance, Stockings "Seam" Prettier

Full-fashioned hose, seamed to allow for fit and flexibility, may be down in popularity — but they're not out! Not for the girls and women who take the trouble to take a look at themselves going as well as coming.

The view from the rear upholds the age-old viewpoint that stockings with seams do a better job of streamlining legs.

So, only the woman with tooth-pick thin stems can be excused for her reluctance to switch from the seamless hose not requiring tiresome straightening.

Those with full-curved to heavy limbs might profit from a backward glance—in both beauty and budget departments. Full-fashioned stockings not only improve leg-lines but provide the stretch that allows for longer wear with greater activity.

It's quite possible that feminine reluctance to "straighten seams" may not be due to sheer-hose laziness, as so many stocking promoters claim. The fact remains that manufacturers have concentrated most of their fashion emphasis on the easier-to-wear seamless styles, especially in color and in heel-and-toe design. They've captured the bare-legged look women want for daytime wear and in sandal-styled shoes—without repeating the same efforts in seamed stockings.

It's conceivable that full-fashioned hose would be more readily accepted—and not only by the women who need them most—if seamlines, heels and toes were less pronounced and lighter in color and if the color variety in seamed hose were greater in general.

Some stocking manufacturers, of course, have kept pace with both seamed and seamless strides in fashion. Becoming acquainted with them is a simple matter for a woman who insists on an introduction next time she shops at her favorite stocking-bar.

All legs can be prettier with proper exercise. Prove it to yourself by practicing, for at least six weeks, the advice in my pamphlet called "Dance Through a Week to Beauty"—available on request to me, John Robert Powers, c/o this newspaper, when you enclose 10c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Newer Criminal
Is More Vicious

An improved science of criminology has all but decimated the ranks of the professional criminal, reports a prominent sociologist, but the replacement is no improvement.

Dr. Lewis Yablonsky of the University of California finds the skilled crook, the thief who depends upon outwitting law enforcement officials for his livelihood, shies away from violence. His only interest is in taking someone's money undetected.

But not so the vicious young punks who roam the streets of every large city and now compose the majority of the entries on police blotters. They really don't care whether the victim has any money or not. Through violence itself is how they get their kicks, and they would just as soon pick on one another as an innocent victim.

"The old criminal not only knew how to pull a caper but how to do it in the cleanest way possible," said Dr. Yablonsky. "Assault and violence were used as a means to an end, not as ends in themselves. This implied a knowledge of law, of court proceedings, of police methods, and many other aspects of the caper."

Not so the modern criminal. Frequently he has no plan for his crime, makes fundamental errors in carrying it out, employs violence needlessly and senselessly, and often even forgets to rob his victim after the assault. He is also younger than his counterpart of a generation ago, and is frequently an addict.

No one laments the passing of the master criminal. His exit should be hastened by whatever means modern technology can provide the officer on the beat and the laboratory technician. But if one had to make a choice between the two, the professional thief would be preferable to a savage whose only goal is to beat senseless any hapless victim unfortunate enough to come within his range.

These Days

By John Chamberlain

Union Uses Common Sense

Columbians have been likened to counter-punchers in the prize fight game; they get slugged with a bit of news and they strike back in anger or in scorn. The labor news of late has brought forth an extraordinary measure of this columnistic counter-punching. But today this particular columnist feels like cheering a union decision. Specifically, the International Association of Machinists is to be commended for accepting a contract with the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation that omits the union shop clause. Thus a long, potentially bitter struggle over a wholly metaphysical boon has been avoided in an important segment of the aerospace industry.

There never was any sense to the movement to extort the compulsory union shop from Lockheed, for the management of the company has always respected labor's right to organize. Last fall, when a government "fact finding" board under the chairmanship of Professor George Taylor of the University of Pennsylvania recommended the compulsory union for aerospace companies wherever two-thirds of the workers voted for it, Chairman Courtlandt S. Gross of Lockheed protested that it was morally wrong to use a vote to force even a single person to belong to any organization. But he made it plain in a letter, to Lockheed employees that he had nothing against the Machinists, with whom he had been dealing for years on a basis of mutual respect.

"We have behind us twenty-five years of collective bargaining with unions," so Gross wrote. "We were the first California aircraft manufacturer to sign a contract with a union . . . We have never denied the undoubted contributions unions have made to working conditions and industrial practices. They have grown in strength and generally have served their members well. We have never declined to bargain in good faith with unions representing our own employees . . . We are not anti-union. But we are anti-compulsion."

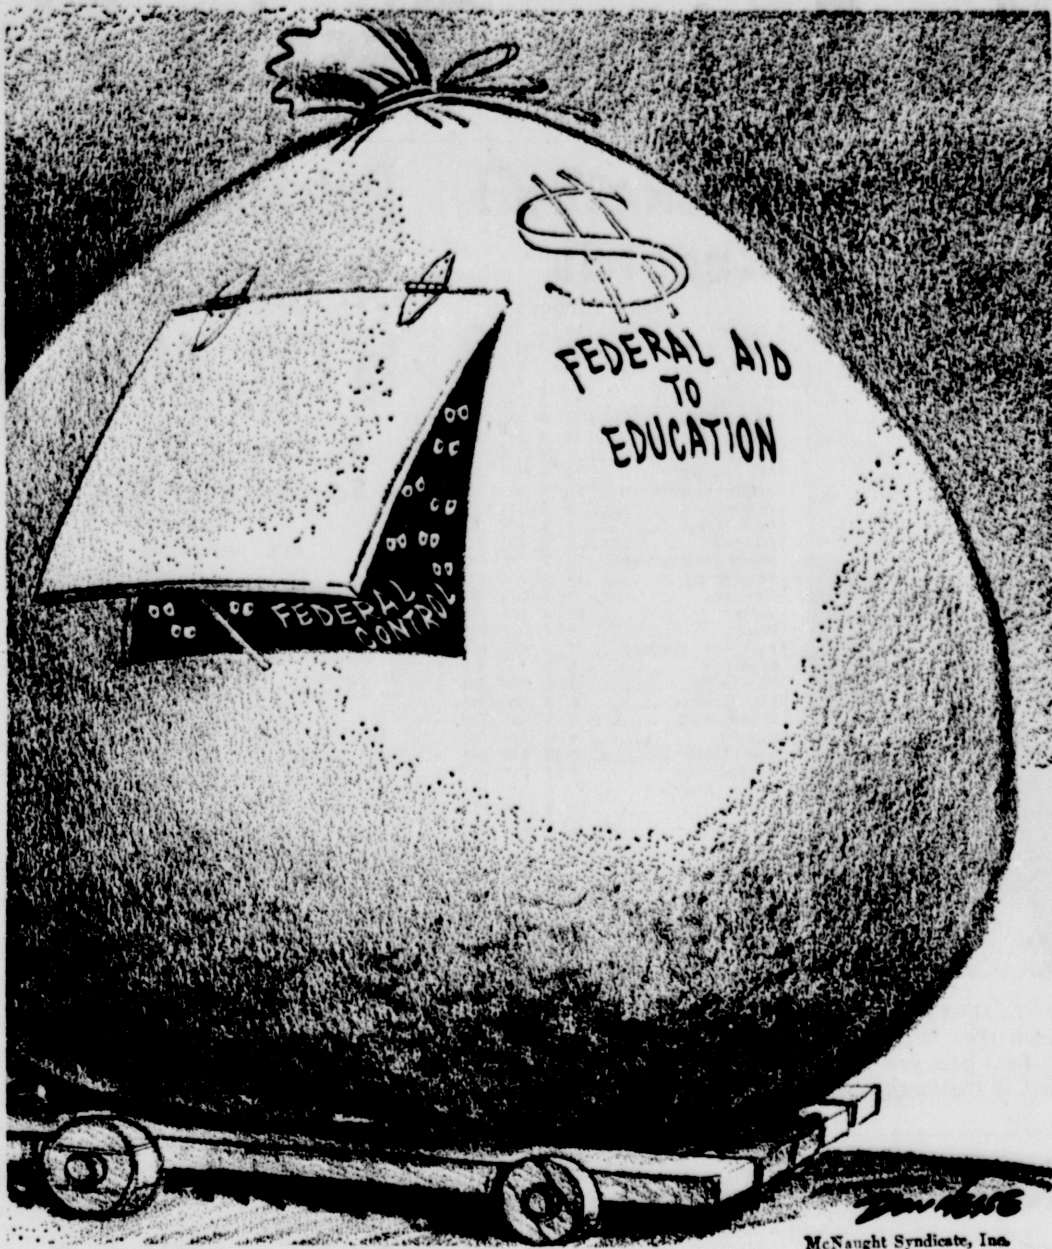

In fighting the urge to compulsion, Lockheed — which is, incidentally, the company that developed the U-2 high altitude reconnaissance plane that has served the nation so well over Cuba—took its corporate life in its hands. For President Kennedy had thrown his influence on the side of the Taylor board recommendations, and just last December the Defense Department's Arthur Sylvester announced, with an ominous implication, that all future Lockheed contracts with the military would have to be approved by high-ranking — and politically-appointed — secretaries. If, after the termination of the Taft-Hartley no-strike breathing spell, a long strike had idled the Lockheed manufacturing plants in California and its installations at rocket centers from Cape Canaveral to Hawaii, the government could have killed the company simply by awarding its contracts to other manufacturers.

Fortunately, the Machinists' union sensed the good faith of the Lockheed management in relation to collective bargaining issues bearing on such items as wages, fringe benefits and vacations. They also sensed that the temper of California aerospace labor is anti-compulsion, for in three other companies — General Dynamics, North American and Ryan — the unions had not been able to muster the requisite two-thirds majority in a vote on the compulsory union shop clause.

At Lockheed the management has agreed to suggest to new employees that they "give consideration" to joining the union. But this is a far cry from coercion, for the genuine anti-joiner can still grow a "so what?" and go on with his job. The fact that the drive to union compulsion has been checked by a direct rebuff to Washington should give impetus to Senator Barry Goldwater's proposal that action on the union shop issue should be confined to states which specifically permit compulsory union membership contracts to be negotiated. If the federal government would only keep its fingers out of collective bargaining on the matter of compulsory union membership, the issue might die the death it deserves in any free country.

After all, even David Dubinsky of the International Ladies Garment Workers, who believed in fighting for the closed shop as a tactic, recognized that some human beings just will not be compelled. When he encountered a "natural anarchist" in one of his closed shop establishments, he winked and let him go on working without signing up.

Trojan Horse

Can Kennedy, Khrushchev 'Buy Off' De Gaulle?

WASHINGTON

Optimism is rising about the negotiations for a nuclear test ban, which were given a new start by the post-Cuba correspondence between President Kennedy and Nikita S. Khrushchev.

The source of the optimism is largely atmospheric. There has been no give in the Soviet position since the first Khrushchev letter suggesting that the Soviets might agree to two or three on-site inspections, in order to give some insurance against cheating by underground tests.

Yet a compromise is clearly possible, the gap is so small between this minimal offer by Khrushchev and the stated American requirement for eight to ten on-site inspections. As the numbers cited indicate, agreeing to a compromise ought to be easy for Khrushchev, assuming that his move to get the negotiations going again really means that he sincerely desires a ban.

As for the American government, President Kennedy's freedom of action is rather strictly limited, both by national security considerations and by the feelings of the U. S. Senate. But it is quite clear that the President is willing and even eager to reach a compromise, providing the Soviets will approve a serious and workable inspection system and accept an intermediate number of on-site checks.

Such a compromise is thought to be consistent with national security, in turn, for several different reasons. First of all, the Defense Department's Project Vela has made considerable advances in the art of detecting hidden nuclear events. The position has changed materially since the period when the U. S. government felt it necessary to demand really large numbers of on-site checks.

Then, too, the President has gone through a somewhat disillusioning experience. When we resumed testing, we heard the same scientists who used to warn most loudly against underground cheating, just as loudly swearing that underground tests were no real substitute for atmospheric tests.

Dressing for winter sports is undergoing revolutionary changes. The amount of clothing is judged by the type of activity rather than the out of doors temperature. Winter outfits need not be cumbersome and heavy; the newer lightweight materials afford warmth and allow more freedom of movement.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Walter Brady offers this addition to the Sherlock Holmes saga: The good Sherlock observed one A.M. "Ah, Doctor Watson, still wearing your winter underwear, eh?" "Incredible," marveled Dr. Watson. "How did you deduce that?" "Elementary, my dear doctor," said Holmes. "In the first place, you forgot to put on your pants."

Incidentally, Mickey Spillane, one of the Johnny-Come-Latelys who put Sherlock Holmes into the ranks of also-rans in the paperback whodunit sweepstakes, has now been displaced as champion himself by Ian Fleming. How the kids are lapping up Fleming's action-jammed stories of Operative James Bond!

From the notebooks of the immortal Will Rogers: "In the early days of the Indian Territory, there were no such thing as birth certificates. You being there was certificate enough."

"I had just enough white man's blood in me to make my honesty questionable."

"Once you are a showman you

WASHINGTON

By Joseph Alsop

For these and other reasons, government opinion is all but unanimous that the risks of a reasonably policed test ban will be far less than the potential gains.

The question is, therefore, whether Khrushchev will also compromise. According to report, a prediction that he will do so has been made by the President's official Kremlinologist, former Ambassador to Moscow Llewellyn Thompson. Thompson is said to consider that the test ban negotiations to date exactly resemble the tedious haggling which finally produced the Austrian peace treaty.

In these circumstances, it is not too early to look ahead a little, and to ask what will happen if a test ban is agreed upon. One thing that will certainly happen is a Soviet move to open talks on other subjects. Communist leaders have quite frankly said that Khrushchev needs a test ban, both to prove that fruitful agreements with the U. S. are really possible, and as a prelude to other negotiations, about Berlin for example.

Then the question of China's nuclear effort will quite unavoidably arise after Soviet-American agreement on a test ban. The long awaited Chinese test of an atomic device can in theory occur, according to the U. S. analysts, at any time this year or thereafter.

In reality, a latter date seems to be more likely. It is known, for instance, that even the relatively small experimental reactor given to the Chinese by the Soviets is not now being operated at maximum capacity, for want of adequate supplies of heavy water.

But soon or late, it is plainly necessary to anticipate a Chinese test in defiance of the Soviet-American test ban—if such a ban exists. Perhaps optimistically, many of the American policy-makers hope that the existence of the ban will give Moscow and Washington the needed leverage to cope with the Chinese. A cynical minority suspects that this is rather like planning to fumigate the largest imaginable elephant with the smallest possible perfume atomizer. Unless, to be sure, Moscow is willing to use military sanctions against Peking.

Some leverage will clearly be gained, however, and the dangerous proliferation of nuclear powers will also be halted by a test ban, providing that one other problem can also be solved. The final problem is summed up, as so often nowadays, in the alarming person of Gen. de Gaulle.

It will not be at all easy to put pressure on Peking, even of the mild sort that is unlikely to bear fruit, if France is still conducting nuclear tests without let or hindrance. There is talk, therefore, of buying off the General, by giving the French the thermonuclear warheads they so conspicuously lack at present. In view of the impotence of the French delivery system, Khrushchev should not be excessively upset by an improvement in French warhead type. But buying off de Gaulle is easier said than done.

Banning Of Britain From Common
Market Will Hurt U. S. Farmers

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — The American farmer doesn't know it yet, but he will probably get the heaviest backlash from de Gaulle's veto of Britain for the Common Market. It will probably mean cutting close to $1,100,000,000 of farm products to Western Europe, though the cut won't all come at once.

The reason is two-fold: 1. — Continental Europe is hell-bent to develop its own food self-sufficiency.

2. — Britain's entry was a test case which was to pave the way for subsequent entry by the United States.

The chief economic stumbling block to Britain's entry was the fact that Commonwealth partners — Australia, Canada, New Zealand — would get their wheat, butter, wool into the Common Market at low tariff rates, too.

This had the vigorous opposition of French farmers; and the French farm bloc is just as strong in the Chamber of Deputies as the American farm bloc is in the U.S. Congress.

France has the support price on wheat of $2.30 a bushel, which is a healthy margin over the $1.82 price support on American wheat. However, the German wheat support price is $3.15 a bushel. And French farmers, under the Common Market policy of free interchange, can get the benefit of this high German support price. In other words, they can grow wheat at a $2.30 price in France and sell it to Germany for $3.15.

What they have been planning to do, therefore, is plough up about 6,000,000 acres, hitherto in pasture or other crops, and put it in wheat.

So de Gaulle was not about to open French doors to cheap Australian and, later, American wheat.

De Gaulle, of course, had several reasons for blackballing Britain, but this was one of them. What will now happen is that Common Market tariffs will be increased against all American farm products. The tariff on American broilers is already so high that our market in Germany has almost evaporated.

Of course, it's possible for the United States to retaliate with high tariffs against French and German products, but this is not the way to build Western unity against Communism.

The Chlorinated Cocktail

Rep. Bob Jones, who comes from the missile-city of Huntsville, Ala., is fearful that with water, water everywhere, the United States may soon be running out of water to drink.

He has been working with his friend from Minnesota, Rep. John Blatnik, regarding the problem of water pollution.

Consider the chlorinated cocktail that pours out of the faucet. Most likely, it contains a jigger of sewage dumped in by communities upstream, a dash of insecticide from the farms, perhaps some chemicals and contaminants from a factory.

Not the least frightening may be radioactive wastes, raising the possibility that future ulcers might glow in the dark.

Purifying plants try to clean the drinking water by mixing in more chemicals to counteract the chemicals from upstream. The unsavory solution which finally spews out of the tap is barely drinkable.

The danger to drinking water is only half of the problem. Sludge and slime are also closing the nation's waterways to swimming, boating, fishing, camping. Already our recreation areas are marred by closed beaches, putrid rivers, sewage-clogged shorelines, lifeless swamps, and fishless waters.

Note — Congressman Jones, a key member of the Government Operations Committee, charged with investigating the problems of the government and the nation, was all set to investigate water pollution and other health problems when he got word that his committee chairman, Rep. William Dawson, the Chicago Democrat, had his own ideas on running the probe. Now it probably will not be made.

Boy Scouts In The Cabinet

The roll call of the New Frontier, as Boy Scout Week approaches, shows that all but one member of the Cabinet were either Scouts or active in Scout work.

The President himself was a member of Troop 2, Bronxville, N.Y., later district vice chairman of the Boston Council and finally a member of the executive board. Dean Rusk, Secretary of State, was knot-tying champion in the early 'twenties in Atlanta, Ga.

Douglas Dillon, Secretary of the Treasury, was an executive board member for ten years in Plainfield, N.J.

Robert McNamara, Secretary of Defense, was an Eagle Scout in Troop 3, Piedmont, Calif.

J. Edward Day, Postmaster General, was a Scout in Springfield, Ill.

Orville Freeman, Secretary of Agriculture, was Star Scout in Minnesota Troop 24.

Stewart Udall, Secretary of the Interior, was a First Class Scout in Arizona, where his father, Justice Levi Udall, was awarded scouting's highest honor — the Silver Beaver Award.

Luther Hodges, Secretary of Commerce, was a charter member of the Cherokee Council in Reidsville, N.C.

Robert Kennedy, the Attorney General, was a Scout in England when his father was U.S. Ambassador to the Court of St. James. Bob was granted special dispensation so that he did not have to pledge allegiance to the Queen.

Willard Wirtz, Secretary of Labor, like his predecessor Arthur Goldberg, was a Scout. Wirtz was in a troop in De Kalb, Ill.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

Hon. John F. Kennedy, White House, Washington, D. C. Dear Mr. President:

You win. I'm convinced. Last spring, I wrote an open letter to you about the little borough of Sea Bright, N. J. I referred to it as a permanent disaster area. The letter pointed out that, while the federal government was pouring millions of dollars into stopping beach erosion, Sea Bright was coming apart at the seams, even in good weather.

I told Mayor Thomas Farrell not to expect anything from the letter, because the White House is too big and too remote to even understand where Sea Bright is. It's a part of Sandy Hook, a finger of land rising about five feet above the Atlantic Ocean on one side and about three feet above the Shrewsbury River, behind the village.

There is an old U. S. Army seawall, which is supposed to keep the ocean out, but doesn't. The wall spins the spume off the waves, so that it flies 225 feet across our house into the river. It's like a bartender flicking a head off a beer. Farrell has been mayor in a community of 1,100 persons for almost a quarter of a century.

The County of Monmouth has done nothing because the freeholders have written off the little spit of sand as a lost cause many years ago. Whenever help is asked, they ask what percentage Sea Bright is prepared to contribute, under law. The village is so municipally poor that it could barely put up 10 per cent of a ham sandwich. The freeholders know this. "Under law, Sea Bright could drown."

Well, what happened after the letter to you is incredible. You ordered a White House assistant to write that the open letter had been read, and that the U. S. Government did care about what happened to the village. In fact, the letter said, something would be done even if special legislation had to be passed.

A week later, we of the village were astounded to get a personal visit from Albert D. O'Connor, who has charge of the whole East Coast in the Office of Emergency Planning. Mr. O'Connor brought his New Jersey assistant. He was not above walking up and down the seawall, making notes on beach erosion, tides, lack of stone jetties, cracks in the wall, etc.

Unknown to us, Governor Richard Hughes of New Jersey had read the letter too. He spoke to H. Matthew Adams, commissioner of New Jersey Conservation and Economic Development. He asked Adams to see what could be done. "I'm interested in little Sea Bright," he said. "So are you."

Adams turned out to be a ball of fire. He said nothing, issued no reports, but he queried Washington, worked his way through the various federal departments asking the same question to help and over: "What can we do to help a small community which cannot help itself?"

Mayor Farrell was ready to give up. Sea Bright, shaped like a broken pencil, has a piece of lead running through its length. It's called Ocean Avenue. The street runs behind the seawall and, most of the time, the Atlantic Ocean deposits big lumps of sand in it.

"If only," the mayor said, "the state would take over Ocean Avenue it would be a help. We wouldn't have to maintain it."

This too reached Commissioner Adams' ears. He mentioned it to the State Highway Department. The governor and the commissioner worked with your people until they found a solution in something called The Accelerated Public Works Law.

The lawyers studied it and said yes, a town with no funds can be assisted. Adams asked them to make a survey of Sea Bright's needs. Meanwhile, he asked Army dredges to get into the river, pump out a deep channel, and put the sand onto the ocean beach. It was done.

The engineers came back and said that Sea Bright needed $1,581,000 to repair the sea wall and put sandy beaches in front of it. That's a lot of money for six one-millionths of the nation's population. Governor Hughes heard that Uncle Sam would put up half this money, if the state would contribute a quarter of it and the county another quarter.

The big surprise was that Monmouth County said "Count us in. We'll help." So, within a month, the forgotten seaside town is going to get a new smiling face, new courage and some pride. We're going to be knee deep in contractors, bulldozers, trucks and rocks. The state says that, if the sea wall looks secure, it will take over Ocean Avenue too.

So, for Mayor Thomas Farrell and the rest of us who live the beauty of the sea, but who also respect its terror, thank you. Come and see us in the Honey Fitz. . .

Sincerely,

Jim Bishop

Player Ties Nicklaus In Palm Springs Classic; Playoff Set Today

South African Overcomes Lead Of Five Strokes

Both Golfers End 90 Holes Of Play With 345 Scores

By HAL WOOD
UPI Sports Writer

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Gary Player, the "man in black," from South Africa, put on a stirring stretch drive to catch a faltering Jack Nicklaus and deadlock for first place Sunday in the $50,000 Palm Springs Golf Classic with 90-hole scores of 345-13 strokes under par.

An 18-hole playoff for the crown will be staged at the Indian Wells course Monday.

Nicklaus, the 23-year-old National Open champion, had started the round with a five-stroke lead over the little foreigner. But Gary, playing such intense golf that he nearly forgot to put out on the 14th hole, came in with a torrid four-under-par 67.

Meanwhile, Nicklaus ran into all kinds of trouble, including the necessity for taking a one-stroke penalty on the 16th hole.

Player, coming in ahead, had rolled in a three-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole to get his 67 and 345.

The 18th hole is a 482 yard par five. Nicklaus hit his second shot to the back of the green. Then he walked over to Player.

"What did you have here?" Jack asked Gary.

"I got my birdie," said Player. So Nicklaus walked back to try for his eagle on a 60-foot putt. The well-stroked ball curled around the edge of the cup and went four feet past.

The youthful Ohioan then calmly rammed the ball squarely into the middle of the cup to get his birdie and tie up the score.

Bolt Finishes Third
Veteran Tommy Bolt, who finished with a fine 66, came home in third place to collect $3,000. He had 346.

Gene Littler and Gardner Dickenson tied for fourth at 347. Littler shot a closing round of 64, low for the tournament.

A crowd estimated at 15,000 toured the links to watch the match in blistering 90-degree heat.

The turning point of the match between Player and Nicklaus actually came on the ninth hole. Nicklaus was protecting his five-stroke lead up to that point. But Gary, playing in a threesome ahead, wove in a birdie putt.

Meanwhile, Jack ran into trouble. His second shot, an approach on the par-four, 415-yard hole, caught a trap. Jack blasted out but left himself 50 feet from the pin.

Margin Trimmed

He then proceeded to three-putt for a double-bogey six, and the comfortable margin of five strokes suddenly had been trimmed to an uncomfortable two shots.

The match went all square on the 16th hole when Nicklaus hit his tee shot behind a palm tree and lost a stroke chipping out. He had to settle for a bogey against Player's par four.

It was another brilliant round in a great start this year for Player. He won the San Diego Open and finished in a tie for second in the Los Angeles Open and Bing Crosby Pro-Am. He is the leading money winner on the tour with $10,702 to his credit. Winner Gets $9,000.

First place Monday is worth $9,000 while the loser of the playoff will collect $4,600.

Behind Littler and Dickinson came Arnold Palmer and Jack Fleck with 349. Palmer closed out with a 67 against Fleck's 69.

Nicklaus blamed his failure to win on lack of aggressive play. "I just played too conservatively," said the blond bomber. "I didn't know how to act with a five-stroke lead."

He said he would settle for a win Monday.

Puerto Rican Believes He Can Break Nikula's Pole Vault Mark

Cruz Confident After Topping 16' At Philadelphia

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "Me go that high? I think so, if I can get in enough practice, maybe within a year."

Rolando Cruz, the Puerto Rican born pole vaulter was speaking after winning the pole vault Saturday night in the 19th annual Philadelphia Inquirer track and field meet with a leap of 16 feet, 4 inches.

Cruz, the Villanova University junior, thus became the eighth man to clear 16 feet in the pole vault. He was talking about equaling or surpassing the 16-3 1/2 record Saturday by Pentti Nikula of Finland.

The Finn's astronomical feat didn't shock Cruz as it did John Uelses, the first vaulter ever to break the 16 foot barrier. Informed of Nikula's feat, Uelses, who finished second here last night at 15-6, exclaimed:

"You're kidding."

Assured it was no joke, the LaSalle college freshman remarked with a look of awe on his face. "That's a pretty good jump."

But Cruz, not Uelses, was the big story at the Inquirer meet. His previous best was 15-6, which he did four times.

"This has to be the happiest moment of my life," said the curly haired marketing student, who joined Coach Jim (Jumbo) Elliott at Villanova via Merceyrsburg, Pa., Academy out of San Juan.

No Indoor Facilities
Cruz said his biggest problem in soaring to new heights was the lack of indoor facilities at Villanova for practice.

"The others get to practice outdoors every day," he said. "I have to keep in shape by running and lifting weights. Because of this it will take about a year before I can threaten Nikula's vault."

Thornton To Make Eastern Debut In Go With Pastrano

NEW YORK (UPI) — Blond Wayne Thornton, impressive young light heavyweight of Stockton, Calif., with eight straight wins under his belt, will make his eastern debut Saturday night in a nationally televised fight with veteran Willie Pastrano of Miami Beach at Madison Square Garden. Coincidentally, the 10 - rounder will be 28-year-old Pastrano's Garden debut also, despite his 13 years in the ring.

Although 21-year-old Thornton stacks up as the harder puncher, Pastrano is favored at 9-5 because of his experience, speed and skill.

Thornton, who knocked out all seven of his opponents in 1962, seeks his 27th win in 29 starts; also his 19th knockout. Pastrano, a comparatively light hitter, has only 12 kayoes in his 57-10 record.

Baltimore Among 12 Teams In ACFL

NEW YORK (UPI) — Six additional cities were granted franchise Sunday in the Atlantic Coast Football League, bringing the league's total membership to 12 teams.

The newcomers are Jersey City, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Mt. Vernon, N.Y., Springfield, Mass., and Harrisburg, Pa.

Springfield will play in the Northern Division with holdovers Providence, Portland, Maine, Ansonia, Conn., Boston and Hartford, N.Y. Boston replaced Stamford, Conn., at the end of the 1962 season.

In winning the Inquirer event, Cruz topped a pretty good field, outlasting Dave York, John Belitza, and Uelses, all 16 foot-plus vaulters.

In other events: Bruce Kidd, Canada's athlete of 1962, won the mile in 4:08.7, besting Villanova's Tom Sullivan.

Jones Wins Hurdles
Hayes Jones, the Detroit school teacher, romped to his 38th straight indoor victory in the 50-yard hurdles, timed in 6 seconds flat. Maryland State's Russ Rogers was second, falling at the tape and being carried to a nearby hospital on a stretcher minus several layers of skin from his face and possible rib fractures.

Lt. Jack Yerman, a 1960 Olympian, broke the meet record in 1:11.2 clocking. It topped the 1:11.9 set a decade ago by Mal Whitfield of New York.

Marcel Bernard of France, took the 2-mile in 8:57.2, and John Thomas of Boston the high jump at 6 feet, 10-inches. Texas Southern captured the mile relay in 3:19.5; Georgetown the 2-mile relay in 7:42.0; Paul Drayton, ex-Villanova sprinter the 50-yard in 05.4; Villanova's Don Webster the 440 in 50.5, and Bill Crothers of Toronto, the 1,000 yard run in 2:10.6.

Cincinnati And Loyola Remain As Unbeaten Major Quints

Niagara Handed First Setback By Providence

Top Teams Wallop St. Louis And Iowa, Duke And WVU Win

By United Press International
Niagara is missing in action and now there are only two major unbeaten college basketball teams in the country.

They're Cincinnati and Loyola (Ill.), of course, and it looks like nothing short of reducing the size of the basket is going to bother them. The Bearcats, the nation's first-ranked team, simply toyed with St. Louis in a 70-40 victory Saturday night while Loyola, No. 2 ranked and the highest scoring team in the country, whipped Iowa, 86-68.

Niagara, which was ranked 15th on the basis of its unbeaten record, suffered a 102-78 loss at the hands of Providence.

Cincinnati's meeting with St. Louis at Cincinnati was billed as a "crucial" Missouri Valley Conference game but turned into a rout. The Bearcats clamped their famous iron-clad defense on the Billikens, led 32-21 at halftime and held every St. Louis player to seven points or less. Ron Bonham led Cincinnati with 18 points.

Loyola swept to its 20th consecutive victory with its usual free-wheeling offensive style. The Ramblers led, 39-28, at halftime and before it was over Coach George Ireland used all his 11 players. Jerry Harkness scored 24 points and Johnny Egan had 20 for Loyola.

Third-ranked Duke encountered a whale of a battle from North Carolina in an Atlantic Coast Conference game but won out, 77-69. The Tar Heels trailed by only two points at the half and the score was tied at 66-66 with three minutes to play before the Blue Devils pulled slightly away. Art Heyman led the winners with 24 points.

Georgia Tech defeated Alabama, 74-58. Wichita blitzed Tulsa, 66-38. Mississippi State beat Louisiana State, 73-66. Ohio State shaded Purdue, 97-83. West Virginia shaded Pittsburgh, 68-67. Northwestern topped Indiana, 100-87. Arizona State beat Texas Western 63-60, and Colorado beat Oklahoma 77-68, in other games involving national powers.

Eight straight points in two minutes enabled Georgia Tech to open a big second half lead and cruise to its 16th win in 17 games. Jim Cladwell, 6-9 sophomore, led the engineers with 16 points.

Bradys Paces Ohio State
Wichita connected on 48.1 percent of its shots from the floor to win without working up a sweat; Gary Bradys poured in 38 points to lead Ohio State to its fourth victory in six Big 10 games; Red Stroud and Richie Williams scored 18 points each for Mississippi State, and Rich Falk's 35 points paced Northwestern to its upset of Indiana.

Seventh-ranked Stanford was to have met Washington State in Pullman but the team bus could not pass the icy roads from Spokane and the game was cancelled. Bobby Howard's free throw with eight seconds left clinched Arizona State's victory over Texas Western after the fifth-ranked Sun Devils led a 12-lead with four minutes to go to dwindle away.

In other games around the country, Bowling Green nipped Canisius, 60-59. Creighton defeated St. Bonaventure, 81-74. Minnesota edged out Wisconsin, 69-68. Auburn topped Vanderbilt, 62-59. DePaul beat Louisville, 78-73. Michigan shaded Michigan State, 72-71. Kentucky downed Florida, 94-71. Bradley led all the way in an 85-69 victory over Marquette. Iowa State defeated Kansas, 69-57, and Houston topped North Texas State, 68-62.

Seniors Title Won By Barron

PORT ST. LUCIE, Fla. (UPI) — Herman Barron, 53-year-old former Ryder Cupper from Palm Beach, fired his fourth straight sub-par round Sunday with a 69 and a record 16-under-par 272 to win the PGA Seniors golf championship by a two-stroke margin.

The chunky New Yorker started the final round in a tie with John Barnum, but buried the Grand C Rapids, Mich., slugger when he shot a three-under par 33 on the front nine.

Barron then matched par on the final nine to win the $2,500 first prize, the coveted Teachers Trophy and a trip to Scotland to play Britain's seniors champion.

Barnum, meanwhile, shot a 35-36-71 which dropped him into second place by two strokes.

Barron, a former winner of the Philadelphia, All American and Western Open championships, shattered by six shots the 278 record defending champion Paul Runyan posted last year. Runyan, shooting for a third straight title, finished up with a 72 for 291.

Third to Barron, seven shots back with a final round 75, came rugged Henry Ransom of Bryant, Tex.

GRIFFITH DRIVES DANE TO CANVAS—Chris Christensen, Danish middleweight, is sprawled supine on canvas, driven there by Emile Griffith's right and left to the head in the third round of their scheduled 15-round fight in Forum Stadium, Copenhagen, Sunday. Griffith is waved away by Referee Robert Seidel of Switzerland, as he looks down on his fallen foe. Christensen was down for the count of eight in this round. Emile Griffith Stops Christensen In 9th Round Of Copenhagen Scrap

Welter Champion Floors Foe Thrice, Wins Ninth Straight

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — World welterweight champion Emile Griffith celebrated his 25th birthday Sunday by flooring blood-smeared Chris Christensen three times and stopping him in the ninth round when the Dane's handlers threw in the towel.

Griffith's welterweight (147-pound) crown was not at stake in the scheduled 15-round fight with the former European welter champion before an estimated 4,000 in Forum Hall.

However, Emile of New York was defending his synthetic Austrian version of the world junior middleweight (154-pound) title as he registered his ninth straight victory.

Referee Robert Seidler of Switzerland declared a technical knockout at 1:16 of the ninth round, just after 36-year-old Christensen had staggered to his feet at the count of eight, with blood pouring from his nose and from a cut under his right eye — and the towel came sailing in.

Chris' Fifth Kayo
It was the fifth time Christian had been stopped in his career of 70 fights and it was his 22nd defeat.

Griffith, who was guaranteed $15,000 and all expenses for this birthday workout, weighed 152 pounds, two more than Chris.

Top Field Goal Of Pitt Cager's Career No Good

PITTSBURGH (AP) — What could be the biggest field goal Dave Roman ever scores never will show in the Pitt basketball statistics.

The 40-foot jump shot fell cleanly through the basket with a single second left in the game Saturday night, ostensibly handing the Panthers a 69-68 victory over West Virginia.

But the officials disallowed the score, ruling Pitt's Tim Grigich and Ben Jinks had called time out before Roman led fly. The score reverted to 68-67, and West Virginia had its 13th straight victory over the Panthers dating back to the 1956-57 season.

Pitt coach Bob Timmons explained the incredible finish, which started when Pitt took the ball out after Tom Lowry's push shot put the Mountaineers ahead 68-67. Pitt called time, and 3 seconds remained.

"Our main concern was to get off the last shot," Timmons said Sunday. "You have to get the ball up over mid-court before you get it in decent scoring territory. We took the first time out and set up the play for the last shot. Then by the time Roman had dribbled a couple of times we felt time was running out."

"Time was out when Roman scored. I felt real bad because I knew we had called time. There wasn't any doubt in my mind that time had been called because those were the instructions."

Only a handful of persons besides Timmons realized the situation, though. Most of the players and a mob of Pitt students already had lifted a beaming Roman to their shoulders.

Once order was restored, Pitt again took the ball out of bounds. This time a jump shot by Jinks fell harmlessly short of its target.

"That was the irony of it," Timmons commented. "The one we set up didn't go in."

Zephyrs Triumph

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Rookie Terry Dischinger came up with 25 points Sunday, five of them vital tallies during the final two minutes that helped the Chicago Zephyrs squeeze out a 110-108 victory over the San Francisco Warriors in a National Basketball Association game.

Christensen, who had lost five of eight fights during his only campaign in the United States in 1954 and '55, had no chance Sunday against the fast, explosive champion who was born in the Virgin Islands.

Emile battered Chris about the ring in the first two rounds, shaking him up with left jabs and left hooks to the head and rights to the body.

One Good Showing
Chris made his only good showing in the fourth session when he knocked the champion back onto his heels with a right to the chin.

But Chris didn't even win that round.

After that it became just a question of how long the Dane could last. The end came in the ninth when a left hook dropped him for the count of eight. No sooner had he regained his rubbery legs than another left hook dropped him for eight and the technical towel kayo.

American ambassador to Denmark, William McCormick Blair, Jr., visited Chris in his dressing room after the bout and congratulated him on his ruggedness and courage.

Christensen had no excuses. He grinned wryly and told the ambassador: "The best man won."

number. These are speed of nearly 200 miles an hour, powerful and graceful flight, courage in killing feathered or furred prey more than twice their size, keen eyesight, about eight times that of a human being, alertness and noble carriage, and finally, noble tradition.

The falcon family, a species of hawks known as Falconidae, has many species throughout the world. They range from the huge gyrfalcon which is two feet long, to the falconet, only a little over six inches in length. All true falcons are characterized by long pointed wings, a notch or tooth in the upper half of the beak, and dark brown eyes. In contrast, other hawks have broader and more rounded wings, yellow, orange or reddish eyes and no tooth or notch in the upper part of the beak.

Full-Grown At 2 Months

Each year the academy falcons acquire a few young birds known as eyases. An eyas is hatched by early June and is full-grown in two months. During August and September these falcons can be fully trained and ready to be flown at football games.

All birds used in falconry are trained through successive stages until they may be released to fly free in pursuit of the leather lure.

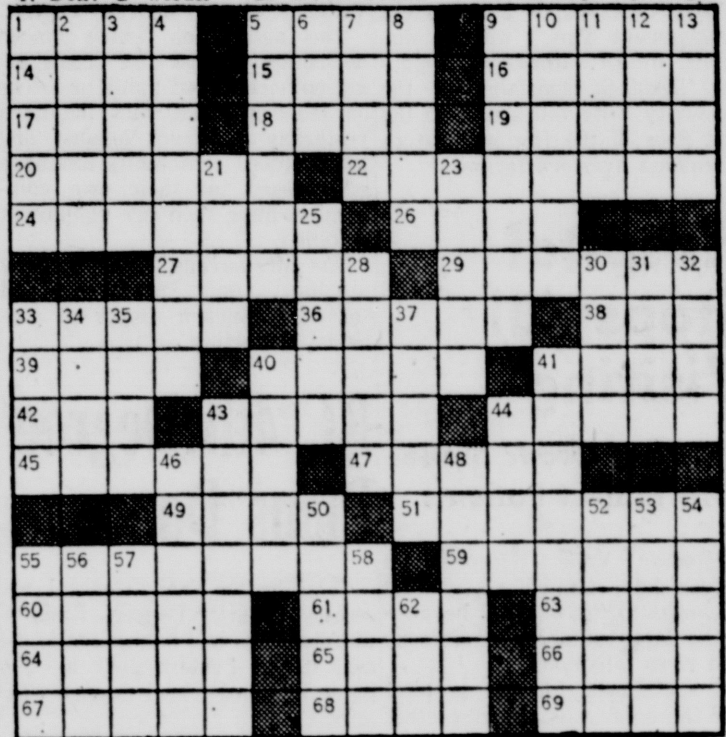

When the falcon will come unhesitatingly to the lure over a distance of 75 to 100 feet, it is ready to fly free. The falcon eventually is brought in by allowing it to catch the lure in mid-air and then immediately is rewarded with its daily meal.

Proper training of falcons is more properly labeled an art than a science. No two birds are alike in temperament and even the same bird will react differently from day to day, according to his mood. A falcon never can be considered as a tamed or domesticated pet for he is forever a wild creature with a strong spirit of independence.

Each time the handler flies his bird it is a new challenge to his skill, for a falcon is never dominated or subjugated. Only a thin thread of mutual trust and interdependence brings the falcon down in that final stoop to seize the rewarding lure at the climax of his wild, soaring free flight.

number. These are speed of nearly 200 miles an hour, powerful and graceful flight, courage in killing feathered or furred prey more than twice their size, keen eyesight, about eight times that of a human being, alertness and noble carriage, and finally, noble tradition.

The falcon family, a species of hawks known as Falconidae, has many species throughout the world. They range from the huge gyrfalcon which is two feet long, to the falconet, only a little over six inches in length. All true falcons are characterized by long pointed wings, a notch or tooth in the upper half of the beak, and dark brown eyes. In contrast, other hawks have broader and more rounded wings, yellow, orange or reddish eyes and no tooth or notch in the upper part of the beak.

Full-Grown At 2 Months

Each year the academy falconers acquire a few young birds known as eyas. An eyas is hatched by early June and is full-grown in two months. During August and September these falcons can be fully trained and ready to be flown at football games.

All birds used in falconry are trained through successive stages until they may be released to fly free in pursuit of the leather lure.

When the falcon will come unhesitatingly to the lure over a distance of 75 to 100 feet, it is ready to fly free. The falcon eventually is brought in by allowing it to catch the lure in mid-air and then immediately is rewarded with its daily meat.

Proper training of falcons is more properly labeled an art than a science. No two birds are alike in temperament and even the same bird will react differently from day to day, according to his mood. A falcon never can be considered as a tamed or domesticated pet for he is forever a wild creature with a strong spirit of independence.

Each time the handler flies his bird it is a new challenge to his skill, for a falcon is never dominated or subjugated. Only a thin thread of mutual trust and interdependence brings the falcon down in that final stoop to seize the rewarding lure at the climax of his wild, soaring free flight.

Md. Assembly Weighs Uniform Business Code

Would Consolidate Existing Laws

By GEORGE BOWEN

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — A uniform code covering commercial transactions described as the "most important piece of legislation of this type developed in this century" will be explained at the Maryland General Assembly this week.

Members of the two judiciary committees have set aside Tuesday and Wednesday mornings to hear whether Maryland should adopt the code.

It is the result of a 20-year study and has been adopted in 18 other states in the past 10 years. It has been recommended for Maryland by a commission named two years ago by Gov. Tawes.

Consolidates Laws

The code deals with all the phases ordinarily arising from start to finish from the sale and payment for goods. It consolidates in one section all commercial law now covered by seven old uniform acts and other statutes in Maryland.

Most of the Maryland law on commerce is more than 50 years old.

"Our present commercial statutory law is in many respects extremely uncertain because of inconsistencies in the law itself or because of inconsistent interpretations," stated the governor's study commission.

"There are also areas where there is no statutory coverage whatsoever."

"It would indeed aid Maryland economy if its laws covering these fields were in accord with the laws of the principal commercial states and this would be the case if the uniform commercial code were enacted."

UCJF Changes Weighed

The Senate Judiciary Committee will follow up Thursday with a hearing on six proposed changes in the state's unsatisfied claim and judgment fund.

That is the fund to which motorists may file claims if they have been involved in an accident and cannot collect damages from an uninsured owner of the other car.

The Senate Finance Committee has set up an ambitious program for itself with seven topics to be gone over Tuesday afternoon and 11 on Wednesday.

Likely to produce considerable talk on Tuesday is a resolution requesting the governor to name a commission to study rising hospital costs.

Although Gov. Tawes already is preparing to appoint such a commission, the subject has become one of wide concern since Blue Cross was granted another rate increase last month.

Sen. John L. Sanford, D-Worcester, stated in his resolution that hospital costs have become "well nigh intolerable for most of our people."

The Senate Finance Committee also will consider Tuesday whether the legislature should have a say in the location of expressways.

On Wednesday, it will go into a proposal that the state set up a fund for fire insurance on its buildings. Its sponsor, Sen. James Clark Jr., claims the state could save money this way instead of paying premiums to private insurance companies.

At a recent meeting Leonard Schwab, advancement chairman, presented awards to several youths. They were Todd Schwab, Webelos; Dale Altizer, Ace Humbertson, Steve Kirk and Gary Porter, Bear; Jeffrey Burgess and Richard Gerson, Wolf; Steve Kirk, Dale Morgan and Richard Weber, Arrow Points; Philip Burgess, Clarks Fales, Floyd Hough, Randy McIntyre and Dale Morgan, Denner Bar; Johnny Dorn, Ricky Emerick, Dennis Green, Billy Howard, Ace Humbertson and Eddie Marker, assistant Denner Bar, and Michael Pratt, Bobcat.

Many Types of Falcons
The U. S. Air Force Academy's information officer, Captain William M. Mack, has sent this newspaper considerable information about the falcons. There are many types of falcons, five of which are native to North America. The academy usually has three types in its mews, the prairie falcon, which is native to Colorado; the large, beautiful white gyrfalcon, native of the Arctic icecap, and the peregrine falcon, commonly known as the duck hawk. The academy's gyrfalcon, the subject of innumerable pictures and the object of general admiration at academy athletic contests, is a gift to the academy.

The falcon was selected as the mascot of the Cadet Wing on September 25, 1955, by members of the Class of 1959, the academy's first graduating class. It has become a symbol of the institution's athletic teams. Sports writers call all academy teams the Falcons, and the $3,500,000 stadium, dedicated during the 1962 football season, is known as the Falcon Stadium. It was erected with donated funds.

Characteristics of falcons which are considered proper qualifications for a mascot were six in

Hospital Stops All Visiting

Keyser Order Made To Protect Patients

Potomac Valley Hospital in Keyser has stopped all visiting privileges to the hospital because of the large numbers of persons with virus infections.

A spokesman for the hospital said the order was put into effect Saturday at noon to protect patients from visitors who may have a virus.

It was reported many persons in the Keyser area are being treated privately for the flu and other virus infections and the hospital said it felt it would be wise to restrict visiting until the illnesses subside.

The hospital spokesman also said there had been several cases where it is believed patients contacted the flu from visitors.

At the present time the hospital is overcrowded and some patients are being cared for in the halls of the institution.

Allegany-Garrett Firemen Convention Slated June 6

The Allegany-Garrett Counties Volunteer Firemen's Association will hold its annual convention June 6 in Oakland.

The business sessions, memorial service and banquet will be held in St. Paul's Methodist Church.

During a regular monthly meeting yesterday in the fire hall at Mt. Savage, the association discussed the annual smoker which will be held at Lonaconing on Saturday, April 27, with the Goodwill Fire Company as host.

The invitation and entertainment committees were authorized to proceed with plans for the annual event, which is a highlight of the social activities of the association.

A bill which the association sought passed in the Maryland Legislature making it mandatory for the County Board of Commissioners to pay amounts up to $500 to the member companies has been dropped, said Francis Fatkin, chairman of the legislative committee of the association.

The association's safety training committee urged members companies yesterday to have representatives at the Fire School Saturday at Frostburg.

The course which will consist of six classes which will begin Saturday at 1 p. m. for a four-hour period is one of four schools throughout Maryland being conducted by the Fire Extension Service.

Officers of the companies as well as representatives of industrial plants and the Cumberland Fire Department are asked to attend the school.

Members who wish license tags with letters FD are asked to notify the Department of Motor Vehicles of any address change.

The association which voiced opposition against fire chiefs being authorized red lights or sirens on their personal cars indicated yesterday it is not against any incorporated community having a bill passed for their own company to have such fire equipment installed.

The Mt. Savage Fire Company auxiliary unit prepared and served a chicken dinner at yesterday's meeting.

Alleghenies Unit To Meet In Frostburg

Will Be Arranged Early In May

The Council of the Alleghenies will convene in Allegheny County for a general membership meeting early in May in Frostburg.

This council is a voluntary non-profit organization of public and private civic, educational, cultural, religious, economic, health and welfare agencies and individuals concerned with the general welfare of the people of the Allegheny Highlands.

A decision for the Frostburg meeting was made when a group of the council's leaders met Saturday at the Penn Alps in Grantsville.

Robert Mann of the West Virginia University Library will arrange to have a speaker for the Frostburg meeting from the Council of the Southern Highlands.

Preliminary plans for a brochure to interest prospective new members into the council were presented by Thomas F. Conlon Jr. and were approved. It is expected that this brochure will be ready for distribution before the Frostburg meeting.

Arthur Ziegler, a member of the faculty of Carnegie Institute of Technology, who has accepted the editorship of the Journal of the Alleghenies, announced plans to have the first issue published by early May. This first issue will stress the aims and objectives of the council and some of the resources of the 21 Maryland, West Virginia and Pennsylvania counties considered in the Allegheny Highlands.

Dr. Alta Schrock of Grantsville is president of the council. She named Dr. Adam Baer of Frostburg and Mr. Conlon to serve as co-chairmen of arrangements for the Frostburg meeting. The committee also will include C. Lee Renaud and Albert D. Darby Jr.
